

How to Use Your Daily Log

Your Field Manual for the Next 182 Days

This journal is not a diary; it is a war room. You are going to use these pages to document your fight, process your fear, and record every single time God moves on your behalf.

Because every warrior's battle is different, these daily log pages are completely flexible. Print as many as you need. (Or use an optional separate notebook) Some days you might only write a single sentence; other days you might fill three pages. Just skip a line, write the new date, and keep going.

The Code: How to Label Your Entries

To keep your log organized, you will use a simple shorthand at the start of every entry. Whenever you write, just label that specific entry with the Day, the Box you are focusing on, and any action step notes.

(Example: Day 12 / Box 3 / Scripture writing)

The Most Important Label: Box 5

Every single month, Box 5 is your designated Miracle and Gratitude box. Whenever God answers a prayer, provides unexpected peace, or gives you a good medical report, label that journal entry with Box 5, (or the symbol)

Why this matters: At the end of every month, your Action Step will ask you to calculate your Total Miracle Count. Instead of having to re-read thirty days of journal entries, all you have to do is quickly scan your pages and count how many times you wrote "Box 5."

Keep your pen moving. Your victory is being recorded.
